

About the Seven Seas

Public Lecture Series “Mensch und Meer: Zwischen Nutzen und Ausbeutung“ of ZAK Covers the Ocean as a Habitat

The Colloquium Fundamentale deals with the conflict between protection and utilization of the biggest habitat of earth – the oceans. (Photo: pexels)

It is a source of food as well as an economic area, a climate maker, and a place of longing: The sea has always fascinated mankind. In the 2016 summer semester, the Colloquium Fundamentale of ZAK | Center for Applied Cultural and General Studies of Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT) will cover marine research. The series of public lectures will be opened by Professor Reinhold Leinfelder, geologist of Freie Universität Berlin and Director of the Projektinitiative Haus der Zukunft (house of the future project initiative) on Thursday, May 12, 2016, 18.30 hrs, at the NTI Hörsaal (Engesserstraße 5, building 30.10).

[...]

The public lectures of the Colloquium Fundamentale will be held in the German language on Thursdays. Admission is free.

Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT) pools its three core tasks of research, higher education, and innovation in a mission. With about 9,300 employees and 25,000 students, KIT is one of the big

Monika Landgraf
Chief Press Officer

Kaiserstraße 12
76131 Karlsruhe, Germany
Phone: +49 721 608-47414
Fax: +49 721 608-43658
E-mail: presse@kit.edu

For further information,
please contact:

Anna Moosmüller
ZAK | Center for Applied Cultural and General Studies
Public Relations
Phone: +49 721 608-48027
Fax: +49 721 608-44811
E-mail: anna.moosmueller@kit.edu

institutions of research and higher education in natural sciences and engineering in Europe.

KIT – The Research University in the Helmholtz Association

Since 2010, the KIT has been certified as a family-friendly university.

This press release is available on the internet at www.kit.edu.