

Fit for the Dialog of Research and Public

New Course of Studies on “Science – Media – Communication“ to start at KIT

In the new bachelor program, students will acquire journalistic competences as well as knowledge of natural sciences and engineering. (Photo: Gabi Zachmann, KIT)

Monika Landgraf
Press Officer

Kaiserstraße 12
76131 Karlsruhe, Germany
Phone: +49 721 608-47414
Fax: +49 721 608-43658
E-mail: presse@kit.edu

In the next winter semester, KIT will offer interdisciplinary, networked education in science communication and journalism. The new course of studies “Science – Media – Communication” is scheduled for a duration of six semesters and completed by the degree of Bachelor of Arts (B.A.). The students will learn to process complex matters in natural sciences and engineering for various target groups in an understandable and clear manner and to use various media channels.